SINNETT GENEALOGY

PREFACE.

In the years spent in the preparation of this volume the most prominent members of the Sinnett, Sinnott, and Synnott, families in America, Ireland and England, have been consulted, that all possible information might be secured in regard to this sturdy old family. The results of the research of many fine historians have been examined. Thus all that is here given may be considered as perfectly reliable.

Hon. Philip Herbert Hore of the Imperial Institute, London, whose histories of Wexford, and other towns of Ireland, have had such a wide and enthusiastic reading, says: "Synnott is not at all a French Huguenot name, as has been quite often said. This was a family from Normandy, which came to England at a very early date. Sir Walter Sinnott, a Knight of great valor, came to Wexford, Ireland, with Richard De Clare, the famous Earl Strongbow, about the year 1172. I think that all the Sinnetts of England, America, etc., are descended from this ancestor, and practically all of these are from County Wexford, Ireland, ancestors."

"The Chronicles of the County of Wexford, Ireland, Brought Down to 1877," was compiled with great care by George Griffiths, editor of the Wexford County Almanac and Directory. It states many things which are of great interest to every member of the Sinnett family. Among these may be cited the following: "The County of Wexford, Ireland, is the first place where the Anglo-Norman invaders landed and made a settlement. It was an event of vital importance to the country, involving, as it did, a total change in its laws, manners, and customs, and subjecting it to these conquerors for over seven centuries. Immediately on the Plantation of the Anglo-Saxon Colony in Forth, after the surrender of Wexford to Strongbow, proper steps were taken to render it self-reliant and independent in its own resources. The Colonists were remarkable for industry, frugality, and strict attention to the duties of life, qualities which continue in their descendants to the present day. Among them came tradesmen and artificers in every kind of business, and, confined within their narrow and almost sea-girt limits, they were able to supply all their necessary and artificial wants without dependence on others, or externs. This Colony soon became populous, and was, in fact, a perfect hive of industrious bees producing honey in abundance." In "A Brief Description of the Barony of Forth, in the County of Wexford, Ireland," written in 1670, it is quaintly said: "The Barony of Forthe in all emergencies of publique concerns in said County, precedeth and hath preëminence. The Gentry and Inhabitants first in all Courts called; and in time of Warre, Expeditions, Rising-in-Arms in order to the opposing and suppressing of turbulent seditions, factions, or known and celebrated rebels, some prime Gentlemen thereof had the conduct and command of the Forces raised in said County. The ancient Gentry and Inhabitants of this Barony derive their originall extraction lineallie from England — their Predecessors having been Officers in the Army under Fitz Stephen who first invaded Ireland. Suddenlie, after the conquest thereof, distinct allotments of land, according to their respective qualities and merits, were assigned them, which, until the Cromwellian Usurpation and Government, they did during five hundred years almost complete, without any dimunition or addition, peaceable and contentedlie possess — never attainted nor convicted of any crime meriting forfeiture!

Many Gentlemen and Freeholders being therein interested who perpetuated the memory of their Progenitors and Families, always conferred their real Estates on their Male Progeny, or next Heir — Male descending lineally in consanguinity, soe that there are until this day, many great habitations and villages retaining the names of their first conquering possessors, as Sinnottstown, Hayestown, Horetown, etc., etc. They retain their first Language (Old Saxon English), and almost only understand the same, unless elsewhere educated, until some years past — observe the same form of apparrell their predecessors first used there. The Natives descended aforesaid, inviable profess and maintain the same Faith and form of Religion and Divine Worship their first Ancestors in Ireland believed and exercised, which the violent and severe tempest of Persecution wherewithall they were frequentlie afflicted, Imprisonment, Loss of Goodes, threatened Forfeiture of Lands, nor any Penal Laws, were prevalent to alter, though their conformity would have been a means and a step to their beneficial advancement, Ecclesiatical and Civil. They were generally zealous in their Religious Professions, having many remarkable monuments extant of their pious zeal, and the devotion of their Progenitors in the aforesaid narrow extent of that Barony, wherein ancientlie were erected, and the precincts and walls yet extant, of Churches and Chappells first firmlie builded, and richlie adorned for Divine Service in their several places and Parishes.”

Mr. George Griffiths says: “After mention that there were very numerous branches of the Synnotts, we may give an anecdote concerning them. They had acquired such large properties, and were so scattered, that when Sir Richard Synnott was Sheriff of County Wexford in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, he summoned a Grand Jury of which every member was one of his own name. On hearing the name so frequently reiterated, the Justice facetiously remarked, that, to judge by their considerable estates and good living, they must have obtained their fair lands by virtuous courses, and acted, and would act, up to their name Sin Not!"

In the appendix to this book will be found quotations from very old records, showing clearly that, in this famous, industrious, God-fearing, prosperous, and talented Colony of Strongbow at Wexford, the Sinnotts took a leading part, and that those descended from them through many long generations have kept well this noble inheritance.

The following, "Genealogy of the Ancient and Noble Family of Sinnott of Sinnott's Land in the County of Wexford, Ireland," was copied for this book, with great care, by Walter Sinnott, Esq., of Orristown, Killinick, County Wexford.

- (1) Sir Walter Sinnott, the first of that noble family, came to Ireland with Richard De Clare, Earl Strongbow, about the year 1172. He was a Knight of great valor. Soon after his arrival in Ireland, he was appointed governor of the town and County of Wexford, together with Sir William Devereux. Soon after the arrival of King Henry the Second in Ireland he, for his good services, obtained the lands and estates now called Sinnott's Land. He married the daughter of the aforesaid William Devereux, and had issue.
- (2) Sir Walter Sinnott, the eldest son, succeeded his father in the estates. He built the fine old Castle of Ballyfarnoguc. He married, 1286, Alice De La Roche, daughter of Sir William De La Roche, who was then the Lord and owner of Roche's Land.
- (3) Sir Walter Sinnott, the second eldest son, succeeded his father. He accompanied King Edward First to the Holy Land in 1273, and lost his life in the field, fighting against the Infidels for the Honor and Glory of God and his Country.
- (4) Sir William Sinnott, his son, obtained Ballybrennan, in the Barony of Forth, and County of Wexford, where he built a strong castle. He married, about 1360, Catherine Whitby, the daughter of Sir Richard Whitby of Ballytange, whose family was hereditary armor bearer to the kings of England. Several children were born to this Sir William.
- (5) Sir Richard De La Sinnott, the son, possessed the lands and castle of Ballybrennan. He married Agnes Rossiter, the daughter of Thomas Rossiter, of Ballmacknee Castle, County of Wexford. One of his sons (6) Sir Robert De Sinnott, married Joanna Kavanagh, daughter of Donald Kavanagh, of Courtown, County of Wexford. He was one of the ancient Irish chieftains, descended from the Kings of Lenster, and by this marriage Sir Robert De Sinnott got the lands of Courtown in the Baronetcy of Gory, County Wexford.

- (5) Sir Robert Sinnott (the eldest son of Sir William) was a very noble man. He married Mary Esmond, daughter of Sir Laurance Esmond, in the County of Wexford. He had sons and daughters. The daughter (6) Jane Sinnott married John Talbot of County Wexford, and the daughter (6) Alice Sinnott married Henry Masterton Fenn.
- (6) Sir David Sinnott, the eldest son of Sir Robert, married Eleanor Stafford, daughter of Sir John De Stafford, of Ballymacknee Castle, in the County of Wexford, Ireland. He had sons and daughters. One of the sons (7) married Alice Codd, daughter of Col. John Codd, of Clæast Castle, County Wexford. A daughter (7) married John Rossiter of Bargy Castle, County of Wexford. The son (7) James Sinnott married the daughter of Nicholas Hay of Haytown Castle, County of Wexford, Ireland.
- (7) Sir Edward Sinnott, the eldest son, married Julien Hore, daughter of Matthew Hore, who was a member of Parliament from Wexford, Ireland, for sixty years. The children: (8) Catherine Sinnott married Roger Talbot; (8) Eleanor Sinnott married Michael Redmond of Ballygows; (8) John Sinnott became a captain in the army and married a daughter of Sir John O'Niel of Asterabays; (8) Austin Sinnot married Jane Butler of Clough, County Wexford. At one time eight members of this strong old Sinnott family were returned to their positions in the Irish Parliament, proving that few families exceeded the Sinnott family in power and respectability.
- (8) Sir Walter Sinnott, the eldest son, was a gentleman of high spirit and of great valor. He joined Pierce Butler, the eighth earl of Ormond, in his quarrel with the Earl of Desmond, and Prince of Osfarry, in which service he took a very active part, commanding five hundred of his own peasantry and defeated both the adversaries in Butler's favor. He married Joanna Walsh, the daughter of Sir Robert Walsh, Baron of Old Court in the County of Kilkenny. He also married Catherine Butler, the daughter of Pierce Butler, above mentioned, who was Earl of Ormond and Osfarry; this was about the year 1551.

- (9) Sir William Sinnott, the eldest son of Sir Walter Sinnott and Joanna Walsh, was made chief governor of Wexford and Enniscorthy, and was a man of influence and power. He married a daughter of Sir John De Grace of Graces Castle in Tipperary, and of his celebrated wife, Margaret Walsh. Sir William Sinnott had many sons and daughters. The son (10) James Sinnott, married the daughter of Sir John Tobin of Tobin Hall in the County of Kilkenny.
- (10) Mary Sinnott married Sir Richard Walsh of Balincooly Castle.
- (10) Sir Walter Sinnott, the eldest son of the above, greatly improved the House and Demesne of Ballytramont, which is so beautifully located on the River Slaney. He fortified the towers and ramparts. He married the daughter of Sir Nicholas, the sixteenth Knight of Ballymager, in County Wexford. Sir Walter Sinnott had many children. He bequeathed most of his lands to his sons. (11) One of his daughters married Sir Roger Talbot. (11) One daughter married William Hore of Harperstown, England. (11) One daughter married Patrick Chevers of Black Hall, County Wexford. (11) One daughter married Thomas Rossiter of Rathmacknee. (11) A daughter married Oliver Walsh, Esq., of Earlsroth Castle, County Kilkenny.
- (11) Sir Walter Sinnott, the eldest son, was left very rich. His father died while he was young. He married the daughter of James Talbot of Castletown, and had many children.
- (12) Walter Sinnott, his oldest son, joined against the Parliament forces in great power and was in great favor of the Duke of Ormond. He represented the House of Ballytramont.

His son, (13) Robert Sinnott, joined the forces of the young Marquis of Ormond, who unfortunately fell a victim to Cromwell's Army at the west gate of Wexford, as he was coming to the relief of Col. David Sinnott. He was fighting bravely, expecting reinforcements, but was disappointed in the death of his relative, whose troops retreated, and left Col. David Sinnott to lament the loss of his property, with the lives and property of many of his countrymen, and of two of his brothers. The sword and breast-plate of this Col. David Sinnott are still carefully preserved by Mark Seaton Synnott of Ballymoyer, County Armagh, Ireland. In the Hon. Philip Herbert Hore's "History of Wexford Town," is given a portrait of Col. David Sinnott and of the armor which he wore at the storming of Wexford.

It is at this point in the history of the Sinnott family that we find the reason why it has been impossible to directly trace to his ancestors at Ballybernnan, or Rosegarland, the line of our ancestor Michael Sinnott of Harpswell, Me. But this search will be diligently continued and all results of interest will be sent to each purchaser of this family history.

Walter Sinnott, Esq., of Orristown, Killinick, County Wexford, Ireland, says in one of his very kind letters: "I can find no trace of your Sinnott line in Wexford. It would be impossible to trace that line, for the family took a leading part in opposing Cromwell in Wexford. Their lands were confiscated, and given to Lord Monk. The Sinnetts were widely scattered, and many of them left homeless. I live near Ballybrennan, one of the ancient seats of the Sinnott family, and there is nothing to be seen, or any tablets, or memorial stones, which these Sinnetts erected before the time of Cromwell, or for long years afterwards. Cromwell was determined that every trace of the family should be swept from the earth. The penal laws followed this victory, and the Sinnott family remained in great obscurity, as no Catholic could be educated in Ireland; he must remain ignorant unless he had the means of going to the continent for study. There was only one Sinnott family whose history differs from the rest. The widow of the brave Col. David Sinnott who had defended Wexford married one of Cromwell's officers, and turned Protestant, as also did her son, David Sinnott. From this young David are descended the Synnotts of Armagh. Some of these have prospered much. In some instances they spell their name Synnott."

Hon. Philip Herbert Hore, of London, England, writes: "There were at least ten Synnott families with large estates in County Wexford before Cromwell came; in the confiscation of property which followed they lost all their lands and records. In many cases former proprietors became tenants of the Cromwellians. The name is now usually spelled Sinnott, and Synnott, and, though their ancestors were so cruelly persecuted, there are thousands of them in County Wexford. I have most voluminous records of many branches of the Sinnott families which were collected by my father, the late Herbert F. Hore of Pole-Hore, County Wexford, Ireland, but I regret to say that I can find in these no way of tracing the ancestry of your Michael Sinnett of Maine. Cromwell's destruction of such evidence was complete. My friend, Mr. Nicholas Synnott, who lives at Furness, County Kildare, the Naas, and is a collector of family papers, pedigrees, etc., and a member of the Royal Society of Antiquarians, perhaps may be able to help you. If I come across anything relating to your quest I will gladly send it to you."

Mr. Nicholas Synnott replied, February 26, 1906: "I cannot help you much in tracing the ancestry of your Michael Sinnett of Maine. Cromwell's soldiers absolutely destroyed the public records, and, in a large measure, the private records. There was no registration of births, deaths, and marriages, etc., until quite a recent time."

In the appendix to this book will be found a description of Col. David Sinnott, and the siege of Wexford, together with the correspondence between Colonel Sinnott and Cromwell, as well as many other items of interest.

"The Chronicles of County Wexford, by George Griffiths," above referred to, gives clear statements in regard to the scholarly attainments of the Sinnott families through all their generations, this giving the names of those who attained to high places in the ministry, the writing of historical records, and places of power and trust. This volume, like all other writings which touch upon the history of the Sinnott family, emphasizes again and again the fact, that, though scores of the family were butchered by Cromwell's soldiers, and though every one of the name was robbed of the lands which had been in the family for generations, they still remained firm in their trust in their God, held fast to everything of honor and worth which had characterized their ancestors, toiled cheerfully, early and late, in cold and heat, overshadowed with sorrows which might have made the stout-hearted quail, hated of men, tempted with bribes which flashed in the sunlight, or clinked in dark places. And this which was true in the far-off days the traveler in Ireland finds true of these Sinnott descendants of this year 1910. Before me lie bundles of letters which I have been receiving from the neighborhood of Wexford since 1900. All breathe the same spirit of trust and kindness after recitals of what the Past has written in letters of blood. Each one is doing his and her daily work bravely and well. Here is one of the first which reached me:

“GLANDAFF, BARNTOWN, COUNTY WEXFORD, IRELAND,

“May 23, 1900.

“Dear Sir: In answer to your letter of March 31st regarding the Sinnétt family. As I bear that name I will gladly give you what little information I am possessed of. I live in Glandaff, about five miles from the town of Wexford, on the right bank of the River Slaney. My brothers rent a farm of about a hundred acres. My great-grandfather, Stephen Sinnett, came from Lachan, about six miles from Wexford, on the left bank of the Slaney. It is supposed to be about one hundred and fifty years since Stephen Sinnett came to reside here. I have not the dates, yet I might find them out. I was thirteen years old when my dear father died, but I shall never forget what he used to tell us of the old family history. He was a well educated, intelligent man. One of his stories is as follows: ‘When Cromwell came to Wexford the family lived in a place called Ballytramond Castle, about two miles from the town of Wexford, on the left bank of the Slaney. The head of this family was shot dead while going across the river to his home. Two of his sons were taken prisoners and banished. To the best of my recollection one was sent to the north of Ireland. I believe the Irish suffered great hardships in those times. There are some of the old castles or round towers to be seen in Ballytramond to this day. As far as we know we are the only descendants of the Sinnetts of Ballytramond Castle, County Wexford. I believe that they were very important people at that time. Stephen and John are names that are often repeated since my great-grandfather came to Glandaff. My father was an only child. I have a brother Stephen Sinnett and he is the only one that I know of. Kilmollock is the burying place of the Sinnetts of Lachan. I was there but once. I do not remember the exact dates on the headstones, but I know that they are very ancient. The Sinnotts were Roman Catholics then, and we are still, and I think that it was on account of their religion that they had to forfeit their possessions. I have often heard of kidnapping such as you speak of in the history of your ancestor Michael Sinnett. People used to frighten their children with the words: ‘Here is a kidnapper!’ I hope you will excuse all this, as I am not a good letter writer, or a clever girl in any way. Farmers’ daughters have little opportunity for an education, unless they are sent to the boarding school, which few can afford, on account of the high rents, failure of crops, and bad prices. I am not wanting any payment for writing this letter. The only reward I could wish for would be that I had been of service in finding out the history of those remarkable people, the Sinnotts of Ballytramond. I have often heard that when the people of Ballytramond Castle knew that they were to be taken prisoners they hid their stores of gold, and to this day people go there by night and dig holes in the earth. I remain, Dear Sir, respectfully yours,

“ELLIE T. SINNOTT.”

The great majority of these letters from members of the Sinnott family in Ireland, and elsewhere, state that the descendants of this sturdy race are keeping with great care the ancient coat-of-arms of the family. Hon. Philip Herbert Hore of London, England, writes: “I have the old coat-of-arms, showing the arms to be three cygnets (swans) sable, in pale on a field of argent; this came to me from my grandfather’s grandfather. The name, and crest, the cygnet, are no doubt connected, but I have never been able to trace the name to France; surnames only came into use in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.” Walter Sinnott, Esq., of Orristown, Ireland, sent a very ancient copy of the coat-of-arms with the motto: “Trust in God and Sin Not.” Miss Mary E. Sinnott, 1816 Rittenhouse Square, Philadelphia, in which city her family has been so nobly represented for many years, has spent much time and money in the study of the Sinnott history, and her book on the family is finely written and has been widely read. The copy of the coat-of-arms which she secured for her volume is offered to all descendants of our branch of the family with the hope that it will be owned by all and be as highly prized as it is in other families. Miss Sinnott writes of this: “The coat-of-arms which I had printed in my Sinnott history my brother received as the correct arms from Dublin Castle about thirty years ago. It is thus described by Burke: ‘Synnot, (Ballybrennan, County Wexford, Ireland, derived from David Synagh of that county, living in 1280; possessed at a remote period of considerable estate, and ranked among the most eminent of the gentry of the baronies of Forth and Bargy. The representative of the Senot line, that of Ballybrennan, Richard Synnott, Esq., was deprived of his estate by Cromwell.) Argent, three swans in close sable, two and one ducally gorged, or Crest,— a Swan seyant sable ducally gorged, or pierced in the breast with an arrow. Motto: Ama Deum et serva Mandata.’”

It is very satisfactory to find that this coat-of-arms, which was bestowed for such bravery, is cherished by Sinnott descendants in America, for wherever we study the family lines here we find the ancient and noble characteristics of the family shining clearly forth; faith and hope which no persecutions can quench; perseverance in the midst of the wildest storms and difficulties by land and sea; activities of the highest order marked by well-balanced and far-seeing minds; fine, scholarly achievements; the results of the mechanical skill which the ancestor in Ireland had in such large degree; the love of home which survives far removals; the willingness to share all God's good gifts with others less fortunate; the art of story-telling in a happy manner; and "length of days" met with grand physical strength and without a murmur at the changes which they marked.

Michael Sinnett, ancestor of all the Sinnetts in Harpswell, Me., and their descendants elsewhere, was born in Wexford, Ireland, about 1730 and died at Orr's Island, Harpswell, Me., September 15, 1800, aged seventy years. He and his wife, Molly Ward, are buried directly back of the old Congregational Church at Harpswell Centre, Me., and their graves are marked by memorial stones erected by Capt. James Sinnett and other members of the family. The headstone of Michael Sinnett bears the following verse written by Mrs. Hannah (Sinnett) Thomas of Bailey's Island, Me., the daughter of Capt. James Sinnett:

"Disturb not the hero, his battles are o'er,
Let him rest undisturbed on America's shore,
'Neath this green mound of earth with bright flowers drest,
His battles are o'er, let his rest, calmly rest."

The following history of Ancestor Michael Sinnett was furnished by his grandson, Capt. James Sinnett, of Bailey's Island, Me.: "The native place of my grandfather, Michael Sinnett, was Wexford, Ireland. At the age of fourteen years he was apprenticed to a glove maker. In those days a boy must get his schooling before he was fourteen, and then learn some trade. At the end of his apprenticeship, and when he was twenty-one years old, he went to Dublin to enjoy a short holiday. Two or three of his neighbors, or brother apprentices, went with him. They may not have seen a ship, or the ocean, before, and so it was perfectly natural for them to stroll to the wharves and admire the many ships in the harbor. While standing on one of the piers they were accosted by a very finely appearing young man, who kindly explained to them all about ocean matters, and the different kinds of vessels, and finally invited them on board his ship which lay near by. His boat was lying manned at the pier, and they gladly availed themselves of his seemingly kind offer. When they had looked over the deck of the ship, they were invited below, and there pleasantly entertained. But, finding that night was coming on, young Sinnett and his friends desired to be set on shore.

'There is no go for you,' said the captain, 'for here you must stay.' Then the terrible truth dawned upon them that they were kidnapped, and were to be taken to far-off America. I think they were not very closely confined, for it is related that young Michael Sinnett obtained pen, ink, and paper, during the night, and wrote to his friends at Wexford of his condition and prospects. This letter he gave to the captain the next morning, as he was entering his boat to go on shore, asking him if he would not put it in the post-office. The captain tore it in fragments and tossed it overboard. In a few days the ship sailed, and in course of time arrived at Boston, Mass. At this period the English government liberally paid every shipmaster who brought over such likely young men, that they might help settle up the American colonies. They were thus paid whether young men came of their own accord, or were kidnapped. Notice was at once given when such ships arrived in Boston: 'There are so many men on board to sell for their passage over.' Any man who paid what was thus called the 'passage price' could have his choice among the men, and the man chosen was obliged to work for his purchaser for so many years. Old Mr. Joseph Orr, for whom Orr's Island, Me., was named, happened to be in Boston when Michael Sinnett and his companions were offered for sale. He probably freighted to Boston two or three loads of wood each year, carrying forty or fifty cords in his 'junky,' or small sloop. He paid the passage money of a man, and chose young Michael Sinnett as among the best of the twenty from whom he made his selection. As Mr. Orr had no sons he greatly needed some one to help him in his work. Michael was at once taken to the home of this sturdy Irishman on Orr's Island, Me. He was set to chopping down the great trees that then covered that beautiful island, which has since become such a famous summer resort. The hands which had so long only been used in glove-making were terribly blistered, but he kept resolutely at work. My father said that, though Michael had known nothing about farm work in Ireland, 'he became a good chopper and farmer.' He was very particular and neat about all kinds of work which were given him to do. Thus he faithfully 'served out his time.'

"Michael Sinnett married April 28, 1756, Molly Ward of Hingham, Mass., who died at Orr's Island, Me., August 20, 1819, aged eighty-four years. This marriage was recorded in the old North Yarmouth, Me., records, as Harpswell was then a part of North Yarmouth, and the bridegroom's name is there given as Micah Sennot. Molly Ward was a sister of Deborah Ward, the wife of Joseph Orr's brother Clement. Another of the sisters married a Mr. Henney, and had quite a family. She was kindly cared for in her old age by her nephew, Stephen Sinnett. The gravestone of Molly (Ward) Sinnett has the following lines which were written by Mrs. Hannah (Sinnett) Thomas of Bailey's Island, Me.:

“Rest thee now from sin and sorrow,
Death is o'er, and life is won,
On thy slumber dawns no morrow,
Rest, thine earthly race is won.”

“Soon after his marriage to Molly Ward, Michael Sinnett took one hundred acres of land on the Sheepscot River, Me. He had a yoke of oxen, and anyone who had such a possession in those days was considered ‘well off.’ The wife having relatives in Hingham, Mass., she soon went to visit them in a coaster which came into the harbor near by, and which was bound for the Massachusetts coast. While she was gone the English king's press gang from a man-of-war, came suddenly upon Michael Sinnett, and bore him off, with some other men, to their vessel in the river. They were carried to New York City, and put into the English army, and, by way of the Lakes, were marched to Quebec, Michael was thus present at the famous siege of Quebec in 1759, and took part in other Canadian battles, until peace was declared in 1763. Discharged at the close of the war, Michael walked home with others through the wilderness. On Orr's Island, Me., he is said to have met his wife once more. When she had returned from her visit at Hingham, Mass., she had found her home deserted, and the oxen gone. Finding no clue to the whereabouts of her husband, Joseph Orr went down and brought her remaining household goods to Orr's Island. Molly (Ward) Sinnett was a very smart, capable woman, and one of the best of neighbors, so that she had no trouble in earning her living. It is not known when she heard where her husband was, but he no doubt sent her some message as quickly as he could. It is said that she was milking when her husband returned; she felt a hand tenderly laid on her shoulder, and looked up to thank God for bringing her husband back to her after meeting so many dangers.

“Michael Sinnett, after his return, bought thirty acres of land on Orr's Island, Me., on which he built the home in which he spent the remainder of his life, and which was known far and wide for its generous hospitality. On this land were built eight houses, those of George Sinnett, Isaac Farr, Edward Farr, Royal Graves, etc.”

Doctor Wheeler in his “History of Brunswick, Topsham and Harpswell, Maine,” says that this land was purchased of Joseph

Orr, and paid for in days' work. He also mentions that, when the wife of Michael Sinnett returned from her visit to Hingham, Mass., to Boothbay and found her home deserted, she resolutely picked her way to Orr's Island, where Joseph Orr kindly promised to take care of her.

Francis B. Greene, Esq., in his excellent "History of Boothbay, Boothbay Harbor, and Southport, Maine," says on page 128: "Michael Sinnett was born in an inland town of Ireland about 1730. As a boy, nearly grown, he sought work in Dublin in company with two other boys of about his own age and from the same neighborhood. A few days after reaching there, while loitering about the wharves, they were accosted by a well-dressed, genial appearing man, who asked them if they had ever been aboard a large vessel, and if they would enjoy a sail in one down the harbor, in one then lying at the wharf, and then return with the pilot. They gladly accepted this invitation. The mouth of the harbor was reached, and Dublin was fairly left behind. The boys grew anxious and made some inquiry of the captain. He told them that they were on their way to America, and that there was no help for them, and they were dazed. When they arrived in Boston they were taken before officials, and the captain made the statement that they came on board of their own free will and accord, but without passage money. They were accordingly sold to pay this passage money. Joseph Orr, who had recently purchased Orr's Island, Me., with his brother, bought Sinnett and took him to Maine. The other boys were sold elsewhere, and no more is known of them. Sinnett worked out the amount of his purchase price, meantime becoming much attached to Orr and his family, and they likewise to him. It was now somewhat later than 1750. He remained awhile longer with Orr, and finally married a woman who had relatives at Hingham, Mass. At Orr's advice he and his wife came to Townsend, Me., and took one hundred acres of land, built a log house, and a hovel for their live stock, and commenced clearing a farm. An opportunity being afforded, his wife took passage to Boston in a vessel going there, to visit her relatives, for a few weeks. Shortly after she left a British man-of-war came into Townsend Harbor; a press gang came ashore. Sinnett and several others were seized and carried on board. They were taken to New York and enrolled in the Provincial army, and marched through the forests to Canada, and fought through the campaign against the French. After the fall of Quebec they made the return march to New York, were mustered out, and made their way back to the shores of Maine. Sinnett went first to Orr's Island. In the family of his old friend, Joseph Orr, he found his wife. She had in due time returned to Townsend, Me., where the sad news of the kidnapping of her husband awaited her. In her despair she picked her way back to the home of her old benefactor, Joseph Orr, who went to Townsend in his coaster and loaded upon it the belongings of this ruined home, taking them back to his own. Michael Sinnett never returned to Townsend, Me.

"I got a part of this history from Dr. Wheeler's History, part from the descendants of Michael Sinnett, and some of it from an old plan made by a surveyor, Jonas Jones, 1757, of seven hundred acres at Back River, now in the possession of Albert R. Matthews of that place. I find that Michael Sinnett's one hundred acres were situated next north of John Matthews' lot, both of whom had houses built at the time of this survey of 1757. The Sinnett home afterwards became the home of James Tibbetts. The date of this survey cannot vary much from the date when Sinnett and his neighbors were impressed. Quebec fell September 18, 1759."

Michael Sinnett was a member of the brave company of Capt. Jonathan Doyle of Harpswell, Me., during the Revolutionary War. The copy of the return list which bears his name has the date of July 2, 1782, and he must have been enrolled in this company long before this date.

Michael Sinnett has been described by those who knew him as a "man of ordinary height, of a spare figure, but capable of enduring great hardships. He had a bright, active mind." His wonderful vitality as inherited by so many of his descendants, especially in the line of his son Stephen, has been often mentioned in the leading newspapers of Maine and of other states.

THE WILL OF MICHAEL SINNETT.

In the name of God, Amen. I, Michael Sinnett of Harpswell, in the County of Cumberland and Commonwealth of Mass., yeoman, the 18th day of April, in the year of Our Lord one thousand and eight hundred, do make this my last Will and Testament, revoking all and every other.

In the first place I give and commend my immortal Soul to God who gave it, and my body to the Grave, to be buried in a Christian manner at the discretion of my executor, hereafter named, not doubting, at the general Resurrection, of the reception of the same again, and I trust through the merits and Mediation of Jesus Christ, a glorious one.

As touching that worldly Estate with which it hath pleased God to bless me in this Life I now dispose of in the manner following:

Imprimis; I give unto my dearly beloved wife, Mary Sinnot, the Improvement of the whole of my real and personal estate for and during her natural life.

Item: I give to my beloved son, Stephen Sinnot, one dollar, and no more, and the reason of my not giving him more is not for want of paternal affection, but (my estate being small) I apprehend that my other children had my interest more.

Item: I give unto my beloved Son, James Sinnot, all my land upon Little Sebacodegan Island, alias Orr's Island, with all my buildings upon said Land, I also give him all my farming utensils, my chest, and a feather bed and bedding.

Item: I give unto my beloved daughter, Mollie Orr, the wife of Richard Orr, and to my beloved daughter, Deborah Folsom, the wife of Joseph Folsom, a cow each.

I further give unto my two daughters before named all my household furniture, consisting of beds, bedding, tables, wheels, pewter pots, kettles, knives, forks, chairs, women's wearing apparel, and whatever else comes under the denomination of household furniture, to be equally divided among them, and if anything remains not herein disposed of, I give to my son James Sinnot. The affairs to the aforesaid Legacies are to come into the possession thereof at the decease of my wife. And my will further is that my son James aforesaid pays and discharges all my lawful debts, and the cost incurred by administration. And I do hereby constitute and appoint my trusty and beloved friend, Clement Orr, sole executor of this my last will and testament. In testimony of what is herein written I do put my hand and Seal the day and year before mentioned.

MICHAEL SINNOT.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

By the Hon. William Gorham, Esq., Judge of the Probate of Wills, and for granting letters of administration on the estates of persons deceased, having goods, chattels, Rights, or Credits, in the County of Cumberland, within the Commonwealth aforesaid.

To all unto whom these Presents shall come, Greeting:

Know ye, that upon the day of Date hereof, at Portland, in the County aforesaid, the Instrument hereto annexed, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Michael Sinnot of Harpswell, in the County aforesaid, Yeoman, &c., &c.

Entered May 6, 1800.

From John E. Sinnett, Sacramento, Cal.: "The house of Ancestor Michael Sinnett stood on the west side of the road leading over Orr's Island, half way from the Dunning Orr place to the William Stevens place. This house was moved to the other side of the road some years ago, and has been somewhat changed. My father, John Sinnett, remembered seeing his grandfather Michael Sinnett in the spring of 1800; he was then on his sick bed in his last sickness. My father told me that this house of ancestor Michael Sinnett was partly built of logs." This house is now owned and occupied by Mr. James Pye, and a picture is herewith given of it as it appears in 1910.

The children of Ancestor Michael Sinnett and Molly Ward:

- (2) Stephen Sinnett, b. July 16, 1765; d. July 17, 1844 (79y.); m. April 5, 1786, Hannah Bailey Merryman, b. 1769; d. December 25, 1843 (74y.).

CHAPTER 1.

* * * * *

(2) Stephen Sinnett, b. Orr's Island, Me., July 16, 1765; d. July 17, 1844 (79y. 1d.).

"His home was at the head of Flag Cove on Orr's Island, and was afterwards occupied by James Smith, and has now for some time been used as a store; though it has been moved once or twice, it now stands near its original site."

Stephen Sinnett was a farmer and fisherman, and was a man of great energy of character, and inherited in a large degree the mechanical ingenuity of a long line of ancestors. When not busy with his fishing trips, or in work on his Orr's Island (Me.) farm, he deftly made many articles of great usefulness for the home, or on board his vessels. And nothing gave him more pleasure than to teach his children, both boys and girls, how to construct play-boats, and objects of utility which helped them over many of life's hard places. Under his wise and loving tuition they became readers which few hard words could baffle, and mathematicians of which he was justly proud; while their work with the quill pens which he patiently made for them was always admired for its neatness and skill. The mother, Hannah Bailey Merryman, was as careful and wise in instructing her girls in household work, and the samplers which they worked at school were the admiration of their teachers. Both parents were strong and sturdy, and their faith in God was of the brightest and cheeriest kind, and so this family of eleven children became famed far and wide for their bodily and mental strength, while each one at an early age became a faithful follower of the Master. Their faithfulness and their many days made the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land that the Lord thy God giveth thee," shine with great luster and power. Many articles have been written of this family, showing that it was one of the most wonderful families reared on the rugged Maine coast. A glance at the ages attained by the majority of these children and their descendants, with what they achieved in life, will emphasize all that has been said. One has lovingly written from a clear knowledge of these noble men and women: "The men were powerfully built and fine-looking, while the daughters were sturdy and helpful. And how correct they all were in their speech and manners. I never see Stuart's picture of Washington without thinking of Uncle Stephen Sinnett. He was a lovely old man, and his brain was stored with local history. It was said that his brother, Capt. James Sinnett, taught more young men navigation than any school in Boston." Stephen Sinnett m. April 5, 1786, Hannah Bailey Merryman, b. Harpswell, Me., 1769, d. Orr's Island, Me., Dec. 25, 1843 (74y.); a woman of most worthy character; the daughter of Hugh Merryman (2) and of Delight Bailey, and the granddaughter of Ancestor Walter Merryman (1) and of Dea. Timothy Bailey, for whom Bailey's Island was named; and thus a descendant from the most highly esteemed pioneers of the town of Harpswell. Their home was widely known for its true Christian cheer and hospitality. The children were all born on Orr's Island, Me., and their records will be fully given in their proper order after the following list:

(3) Capt. James Sinnett, the second child of Stephen Sinnett and Hannah Bailey Merryman, b. June 10, 1790; d. at Bailey's Island, Me., where he had lived since his marriage, Dec. 21, 1881; (91-6-10).

He was a man of untiring industry, even in his old age, walking long distances and doing work which required great strength and skill, and his manner of conducting his many kinds of work was characterized by great wisdom. He was the very safe and successful captain of many fishing vessels, and was a pioneer in the fishing business on the coast of Labrador, and in the Bay of Chaleur, and thus guided many other men into hitherto untried and very profitable fishing voyages. He welcomed the lobster "smacks," which started the new methods of lobster catching and of conveyance to markets, at Bailey's Island, and thus aided hundreds of needy families on the Maine coast. On his large farm he also tried new crops, and so was constantly doing things for the helping of others, and if what he undertook did not succeed on the second or third trial, he held to it with greater tenacity to always see all these plans and endeavors crowned with great rewards for those who had at first criticised his "schemes." Soon after his marriage he built the cozy home of which a picture is here given, which became widely known over the state as one of the most hospitable homes of New England, and around this he planted many trees, some of these being carefully brought from distant places, and his orchard was one of great beauty and delight; while the flower gardens which his wife and children planted with such care were admired by all visitors. Rev. Elijah Kellogg once said: "His whole life was given to work which benefited many people, and helped to make old Harpswell prosperous and beautiful. From the day he first began to follow the Master he never wavered in his strong Christian faith, was a faithful attendant at my church, though to get here he must cross the bay, and then walk several miles across the pastures and fields. His strong, intelligent face in my congregation was a great inspiration to me, for I knew that his character was as strong as the rocks of the Harpswell shore." He kept up the Sunday School on Bailey's Island until he was too feeble to do this work, and into this school every child on the Island in his day was led to learn much of the Divine Love from the Bible which was so thoroughly studied there, as well as from one whose every word and deed they knew to be honest and true. His memory was most wonderful, and his graphic descriptions of his early days, and of the places where he had been, were eagerly listened to. Men and women who had been familiar with the most talented people of the great cities said: "He is one of the most wonderful talkers I have met." He gave the land for the building of the chapel on Bailey's Island, and land for the enlargement of the cemetery, and his other gifts were many and equally wise. Though a member of the Congregational Church at Harpswell Centre, Me., he was a helper in the work of all other churches when he could not attend his own. Capt. James Sinnett helped Dr. G. A. Wheeler much in the preparation of his "History of Brunswick, Topsham and Harpswell, Maine." In this work appears the following account of adventures during the War of 1812: "On one occasion during this war, James Sinnett of Bailey's Island, then a young man twenty-three years of age, with two brothers younger than himself, went out fishing. While engaged in this pursuit they saw a large vessel approaching which they thought to be American. When she came within hailing distance, they asked her name, and were told that she was the Essex, an American man-of-war. Young Sinnett and his brothers then came alongside, and, by invitation, went on board. When they reached the deck they were asked to go into the cabin and see the captain. They did so, and were informed that they were on board the English man-of-war, the Rattler, and that they were prisoners. He, however, assured them that he would do them no harm, and should hold them captive only a few weeks. He said that his object in making them prisoners was to obtain the use of their fishing craft to reconnoitre the coast without suspicion. Accordingly he put twenty of his men on board Sinnett's boat with instructions to cruise about the bays and rivers in the vicinity, and to report to them any discoveries which they made. At the end of the week they returned, and Sinnett and his brothers were discharged. At the time the British men-of-war were in the Kennebec River, and the division of militia were ordered out by General King, Captain Johnson of the Harpswell company notified his men to quickly march to Bath. But after consultation the men of Bailey's Island which were in his company were placed in charge of Capt. James Sinnett, as the Island was greatly exposed to danger from attacks by the enemy's cruisers, and they kept faithful watch day and night. One day Captain Sinnett noticed a small coaster standing in by Small Point, closely pursued by a schooner. The coaster came in between Pond and Ram Islands, and the schooner, not daring to follow, manned a barge to continue the pursuit. They both came into Water Cove at the upper end of Bailey's Island, and the crew of the barge were about to board the coaster when Captain Sinnett sent John Ham of Bowdoin, Me., who was temporarily stopping on the Island, to hail the barge. Ham asked the commander what he wanted. The reply was, 'The coasting sloop.' 'You can't have her,' answered Ham. 'And we will give you a reasonable time to leave, or we will sink the barge.' Upon this the commander of the barge quietly drew off. Mr. Jonathan Johnson was very anxious to fire upon the intruders, but his officers prevented him from doing so." Capt. James Sinnett married March 11, 1812, Mary Johnson, b. Bailey's Island, Me., May 30, 1790; d. March 12, 1861 (70y.); the daughter of David Johnson and Jane Rodick, and thus descended from long lines of patriotic and helpful ancestors. She was one of the noblest of wives, mothers and neighbors, familiarly known as "Aunt Polly," and her whole life was a faithful round of cheerful Christian service. Early in life she united with the Baptist Church at West Harpswell, Me., and ever continued a zealous and faithful member. "Her children, and children's children arose and called her blessed." The children were all born on Bailey's Island, Me.

- (4) Capt. David Sinnett, b. Aug. 24, 1813; d. Nov. 22, 1888; he built a strong and happy home near that of his parents, to whom he was ever so devoted, and in this constantly resided. He was a very energetic and brave commander of fishing vessels to the Bay of Fundy, and elsewhere, and thus acquired the fine farm which is still owned by his heirs. He and his wife were devoted members of the Baptist Church, of great help and cheer in the neighborhood prayer meetings, and their generous deeds and words of helpfulness were known far and wide. Great sorrow came to them in the drowning of two of their sons, who were young men of sturdy character and of great promise, but their faith in God was unshaken, and their sympathy was still more constantly given to all who had burdens to bear. M. Nov. 6, 1839, Lucy J. Orr, b. Orr's Island, Me., Dec. 1, 1818; d. Nov. 17, 1885 (67y.); she was the daughter of Dea. - (4) Mary Sinnett, b. Nov. 27, 1822; d. Bucksport, Me., where she had resided for many years, June 25, 1905.

She was greatly beloved by all who knew her; her garden and home were filled with beautiful flowers, which she was constantly sending to homes where sorrow or sickness had come; and every day her love and help were going out to all around her, and, through her bright, cheery letters to many widely scattered about the country. M. (first), Nov. 6, 1841, Adam Sinnett, b. Orr's Island, Me., Oct. 26, 1817; d. June 8, 1844 (27y.); the son of James Sinnett (2) and Susan Teal; m. (second), May 27, 1849, John Douglass, b. Bucksport, Me., Oct. 20, 1820; d. March 20, 1889; the son of William Douglass and Mary Sinnett (3), the daughter of

Stephen Sinnett (2). The following is one of the many tributes published in memory of this worthy man: "The father of Mr. John Douglass moved to Bucksport, Me., in 1824. At the age of twenty-one John Douglass came to Bucksport Village to learn the trade of a ship carpenter, and apprenticed himself to Mr. John Buck, father of the present Joseph L. Buck, with whom he built vessels for many years after the death of the senior Mr. Buck. He also worked for Master Genn, father of the late William H. Genn, and for Sewall B. Swazey & Co., while they were building many ships. During the Civil War, Mr. John Douglass was employed in the Navy Yard at Kittery, Me., having charge of a large force of men. At the close of the Civil War he became associated with Mr. William Beazeley at his yard at Verona, Me., until the recent decline in shipbuilding. The last vessels which he designed and constructed were the three-masted schooner Norumbega, and the bark Alonwilde, both splendid specimens of marine architecture, and he always expressed himself as being proud of these vessels. His home was a most happy and harmonious one. He always sought the advice of his wife in all his undertakings. His only regret in leaving this world was that he must leave her behind him in an almost physically helpless condition, her lameness and bodily infirmities being so great that they would have long before discouraged a less hopeful person. Edward Sinnett, son of the wife's first marriage, for many years made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Douglass, and he and his wife have often said: 'His kind and fatherly advice we can never forget.' Through the long and extremely painful sickness of Master John Douglass he has never uttered a complaint, but has endured all with the same fortitude and courage which he has shown throughout his life. His religious views were liberal, he believing that one would be dealt with according to the deeds done in the body, irrespective of creeds and doctrines. He was deeply interested in Free Masonry, and his grand record can be found on the secretary's books of Felicity Lodge, No. 19, A. F. & A. M., where for many years he held the position of Worshipful Master. His many charitable gifts were known to but few outside of the widows and fatherless who were the recipients of his generous bounties. The entire community feels that it has lost in Master John Douglass a man of sterling worth and business integrity, and they most sincerely sympathize with the family in their great bereavement. At the time of the funeral all the flags in the village were at half-mast."

Sunday School, keeping up this school through the most severe weather, and working hard for its success.

His golden wedding was very happily celebrated Jan. 9, 1909. "The numerous and beautiful gifts were admired by all the eighty relatives and friends who were gathered to congratulate him and his wife on their long and happy married life. Noticeable among these gifts were twenty dollars in gold, a check of twenty-five dollars, old English ware and paintings. Their many summer friends from out of town sent presents and congratulations. After instrumental and vocal selections, refreshments were served." The picture of "Captain Henry," as he is familiarly called, has appeared in many leading papers, with sketches of his generous gift of the famous "Giant's Stairway," on his farm to the town of Harpswell, Me. The Lewiston, Me., Journal recently gave a fine picture of him and his gift, and said: "His occupation has been farming and fishing, and in his earlier days he followed the lobster business, going to the extreme corner of Maine and picking up lobsters on his return trip, then taking them to well-known markets in Portland and Boston. He said with pride: 'I carried 150,000 lobsters to the markets of Portland alone in one season.' He followed this business for twenty years, but now remains quietly at home. He is of the average height, and has a weather-beaten countenance, but his eye has a kindly, merry twinkle, and he dearly loves to rehearse the good points of the Island with its charm of bay, grove, cliff and ocean." (4) John Edward Sinnett, b. March 27, 1834; has resided at 1431 Q St., Sacramento, Cal., many years, where he is one of the most highly esteemed citizens. After working at his carpenter's trade in Maine for a while he started for the Pacific coast, arriving in San Francisco, Cal., April 19, 1863, then went to Santa Cruz, Cal., the next day, at once finding a good job at carpentering, and remained there until Nov., 1871. He then secured a fine position with the Southern Pacific Railway Company and continued his faithful and highly-prized services until Dec. 30, 1899. For twenty-five years of this time he was located at Sacramento, Cal., and for fifteen years was foreman over railroad buildings and bridges around Sacramento, including the large shops at that place. For ten years he was division foreman of carpenters, and had charge of the building of bridges and snow sheds in a division including five hundred and fifty miles of railroad; building thirty-five miles of snow sheds over the Sierra Nevada Mountains. All this extensive work was carried on in a very skillful and satisfactory manner. Since retiring from this work he has conducted a large real estate business in Sacramento, and, for one of his years, does a vast amount of work; m. (first), Feb. 6, 1836, Paulina W. Snow, b. - (3) Olive Sinnett, the sixth child of Stephen Sinnett, b. March 31, 1800; d. at East Harpswell, Me., Oct. 20, 1890 (90-7-20); she was a woman of strong Christian faith, untiring activity, and great executive ability, faithful in every home duty and beloved by all who knew her as one of the truest and best of friends and neighbors; m. Dec. 2, 1824, Capt. David Doughty, b. Great Island, Harpswell, Me., Nov. 11, 1800; d. Feb. 1, 1885. In addition to the carrying on in a very successful manner of a large farm he was a very skillful boat-builder, doing all his work in the most painstaking manner, for he was a man of most upright character. He was the son of James Doughty who was born at New Meadows, Me., in 1765 and died 1846. "He with his eight brothers served very faithfully in the Revolutionary War." He moved to Great Island, Harpswell, Me., in 1799, having married Dec. 10, 1789, Mrs. Anna (Small) Leavitt. Capt. David Doughty was the grandson of David Doughty who was born at Falmouth, now Portland, Me., about 1720, and was one of the sturdiest soldiers at the siege of Louisburg; he m. May 14, 1742, Sarah Getchell, the daughter of Capt. John Getchell, the pioneer settler at New Meadows, Brunswick, Me., and the famous commander of soldiers. Capt. David Doughty was the great-grandson of James Doughty who was born in 1680 and was a soldier at Falmouth, Me., in 1716, and a man of very trustworthy character, being a direct descendant of Edward Doty, the fortieth signer of the famous compact in the cabin of the Mayflower, Nov. 11, 1620. The children in the home of Capt. David Doughty and Olive Sinnett, therefore, came into the large inheritance of the sturdiest traits of character from long lines of valiant and God-fearing ancestors. One who knew these children well says: "They were quick to learn, full of mischief, but never denied anything they had done; were faithful helpers at home;

they never needed to be asked to do anything for a second time, for they were never whipped, threatened, or scolded, but always taught to obey through love."

(4) Jesse Doughty, b. Feb. 18, 1827; d. Nov., 1831.

(4) James Doughty, b. May 18, 1828; lost at sea Jan. 19, 1861; a very faithful and helpful citizen; m. June, 1851, Hannah Chapman of Bethel, Me.; no children.

(4) William Doughty, b. April 16, 1831; d. Aug. 19, 1897.

The daughter, Mrs. Carrie A. Roberts of Richmond, Me., has given the following delightful sketch of her father: "My father was very mischievous, but never denied anything that he had done. He loved to go to school, was quick to learn, and remembered well the contents of every book from which he studied. When he and his brothers were boys, I have often heard his mother say, if one had a new suit, or a pair of new boots, these were not worn until the others had something new. Their strong love for each other showed itself in this and many other such ways. When father was old enough to work away from home he used most of his earnings to lift the family burdens, as his father's health was very poor. When father got older he thought that he would like to learn a trade, so he went to work with his father in his shop, as he was a boat builder, and he thus worked for a number of years, always helping about the farm work in the summer season. His father was a most faithful workman and took great pains to teach father while he was learning his trade. When he was thirty years old father married, bringing his wife home to live, and they remained there for six years, their first four children being born there. His father and mother loved these children as if they were their own, but the house was rather small for two families so that father and mother decided to get a home, and bought the old place on Great Island where some of their boys have always lived. This plan looked like quite an undertaking, as they had but little to start with, but the parents were very kind to them, well remembering how good this son had been to help them in former years. In six months after they moved into their new home their fifth child was born. They were full of courage, were up early, and worked late. Father had all the work which he could do in his boat-building shop, and this work then commanded a good price. In planting time he was up at two o'clock in the morning, and would take his lantern and go into the field and work until daylight, mother helping him about all the chores, for they planned all their work together, and she was always ready to lend a helping hand at planting, haying, or anything that she could do. After doing his tasks in the field he would faithfully work in his shop until dark, and then was ready to help mother in her labors. In a few years of such loving sacrifice they owned their home, and oh, how happy they were! They had always enjoyed having all their neighbors to visit them often, and now they had still pleasanter times with them. The children were now old enough to help much, but the dear father and mother worked on just the same, for some of the buildings needed repairs, and a nice orchard must be planted, for the children were all very fond of fruit. And during all these years of struggle and hard work they never failed to do their part in supporting the Gospel; they loved to go to church, and though, for a number of years, they had no team, they always attended church and Sunday School. We didn't think it far to walk two and a half miles to church. Our parents did all in their power to make their children happy. Thanksgiving and Christmas were always a delight to us. We usually went down to Grandma Doughty's for Thanksgiving, and they came up to father's to spend Christmas. I really can taste those pies and puddings now! When we were small children father always kept a flock of sheep, mother would spin and color the yarn, and Grandma would weave it for her. The most of our winter clothing was made out of that woven cloth. Father used to amuse us evenings while mother spun. If the evening was very cold he would make toys for us; if it was a nice, moonlight night he would go coasting with us. Another great pleasure was in the fall huskings, although it required lots of work to get ready for these, but the boys were now old enough to help father get the corn ready, and we girls would help mother about the cooking. People would come from four and five miles to help husk the corn, and father and mother were as happy as the rest of us. Mother always said that the neighbors seemed to enjoy the suppers so much that she felt doubly paid for all the trouble she had had. Thus the years passed, and we were all well and happy, and then one falls asleep, and, as is often said, the fairest and the loveliest are the first to go; our family tie was broken, and father, not being a strong man, was unable to do any hard work for a year after that, though he gained much in a year or two, but could never do the hard labor which before had been so easy for him, and he said he did not wish to see another of his children laid away from his sight. In a few more years his health failed, but he was always cheerful, and he worked bravely, though he he had to rest awhile during the day. Whenever he thus sat down he would take his Bible and read a chapter, and in this way he read through God's precious Book many times. He took full charge of the work as long as he lived, and the boys never undertook any task without asking his advice. When at last he sickened and died the change was almost too much for us to bear. Mother was very lonely, but she was true and brave for our sakes, and helped us all in every way that she could. At last she was seized with pneumonia and lived but four days. All her children were with her when she passed away, and we are sure we shall meet her and the dear father in the Better Life!" William Doughty married Sept. 13, 1859, Mary P. Holbrook, b. East Harpswell, Me., Nov. 7, 1833, and died at Falmouth, Me., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Almira K. Curtis, Feb. 22, 1909 (75-3-15). She was the daughter of Abizer Holbrook, b. Oct. 5, 1800; d. April 7, 1865; who always resided at East Harpswell, Me., and m. Dec. 21, 1828, Hannah W. Otis, the daughter of Capt. Samuel Otis and Mercy Williams, he being of the famous Otis family of Massachusetts, and a pioneer settler on Great Island, Harpswell, Me., coming thither from Cape Cod, Mass.; Mary P. Holbrook was the granddaughter of Israel Holbrook, a private in Captain Snow's (Harpswell, Me.) regiment, 1814, and of his wife Hannah Williams; she was great-granddaughter of the pioneer, Jonathan Holbrook of Great Island, Harpswell, Me., who signed the Sebascodegan Patent in 1768, and was a sergeant in Captain Snow's company; m. Nov. 21, 1772, Rebecca Veazie, the daughter of the famous Rev. Samuel Veazie. Children all born at East Harpswell, Me.

(3) Sally Sinnett, the seventh child of Stephen Sinnett, b. Aug. 6, 1802; d. at Bucksport, Me., Oct. 4, 1890 (83-2-2). The following record of her very faithful life is copied from Zion's Herald of Boston, Mass.: "She was a woman of great strength of character, evincing a sternly righteous purpose, a resistless determination, a dauntless courage to stand by her convictions; a fidelity to duty, trust and friendship that would not waver, and, over and above all else, love and devotion to her children. Living to the advanced age of nearly ninety years, she was an example of that activity which promotes longevity, and was always blessing the Lord for plenty of work, of which she certainly had more than her share, being the mother of twelve children, nine of whom survive her, and grandmother of some forty children, to all of whom she never forgot to render a favor whenever any of them needed a helping hand. She was a great sufferer for the last few years, being almost helpless from rheumatism, and was almost blind. Always a Methodist, she still adhered to her faith, saying that the Lord was good, and that she had many things for which to be thankful. As well as usual, but with a sudden premonition of death, she said, 'I shall go suddenly, but, oh, it will be joyful!' Two days after this she was found asleep in her chair — blessed sleep!" Sally Sinnett m. March 28, 1822, Davis Bennett, b. Gloucester, Mass., July 15, 1793; d. Bucksport, Me., Feb. 4, 1866 (73-6-10). He moved to Bucksport, Me., in 1825 and was a very upright, highly-respected citizen, a faithful workman, ship-carpenter and farmer and ready to help in every worthy cause. He was the son of Job Bennett, who was born at Manchester, England, and said to have been drowned from a raft of logs at Freeport, Me., when sixty years of age, and buried in the cemetery of the First Congregational Church at South Freeport, Me. On emigrating to America he settled at Cape Ann, Mass., and later moved to Freeport, Me. His wife was Mary Harridan, of a very strong old family of Gloucester, Mass., and she is said to have died on Great Chebeague Island, Me., Sept. 10, 1853 (87y.). Job Bennett and his wife were people of very sturdy character, and their children and descendants have ever been an honor to the names of Bennett and Harridan. Their oldest son, Job Bennett, Jr., was an ardent patriot and was lost on the privateer Dash of Freeport, Me., in 1815. He was the ancestor of a long line of noble men and women. Mary Bennett, daughter of Job, Sr., married David Doughty of Great Chebeague Island, Me., who was a descendant of Edward Doty of the Mayflower. Betsy Bennett married Alexander Johnson of Hope Island, Me. The Rev. Stephen Bennett married Rachel Soule, descended from the Mayflower Soules, and for over forty years was a most faithful Methodist missionary on the islands of Casco Bay. David, William and Andrew Bennett were men of strong and noble character.

"He was at Harpswell, Me., in the summer of 1843, working at various places. Among the work which he did was the building of a barn for Adam Sinnett of Orr's Island, the logs for the frame being cut on Great Island, and rafted to Orr's, where they were hewed out. This was in the summer before he was twenty years old. Since then he has been engaged in lumbering and farming on his Verona, Me., farm, to which place he came in the fall of 1846, when he commenced working as a hired man for Enoch Barnard, who then owned the place. His work being very satisfactory to Mr. Barnard, he offered to sell him an interest in the business, which offer was accepted. He became a partner in 1849, and this partnership lasted until the death of Mr. Barnard in 1863, when Mr. Bennett bought out the interests of the heirs, and conducted the business alone. This business consisted mostly in the manufacture of lumber, there being a sawmill on the place capable of turning out 200,000 or more feet of lumber in a season. It was run by water power. Added to this quite a business in farming was done, mostly in the production of hay." James Sinnett Bennett m. - (3) Elmira Sinnett, the eighth child of Stephen Sinnett and Hannah Bailey Merryman, b. July 7, 1804; d. Great Island, Harpswell, Me., April 2, 1892 (87-9-5). In her early life she was the very faithful helper of her parents in their Orr's Island (Me.) home, and after her marriage she resided on Great Island. When very young she became a devoted Christian, was baptized by Elder Lombard, and united with the Free Baptist Church, where she was one of the most faithful members until the close of her life. She was a woman of sturdy character, whose entire life was given to the helping of others. After her marriage she cared for her mother-in-law, and for two brothers and two sisters of her husband, and, after her five children had been faithfully guided to manhood and womanhood, she shared her home with six grandchildren, two of these being motherless and the other four orphans. She constantly labored for the upbuilding of the church, and for all the sick and needy ones in her neighborhood, and every one who came to her in the time of trouble and sorrow found in her a true friend and helper. No one ever went cold or hungry from her door. She was dearly beloved by a large circle of acquaintances, and when she was sick she was well cared for and remembered by a host of friends. Her mind remained very clear to her last days, and her faith grew stronger and brighter each year. Elmira Sinnett married Dec. 28, 1826, Capt. John Kemp, who was born on Great Island, Harpswell, Me., Nov. 24, 1797, and died there Aug. 24, 1859. In his younger days, and for many years after his marriage, he was extensively engaged in the West India trade, being the very efficient commander of vessels which were owned in Portland,

Me., and in Boston, Mass. Later in life failing health obliged him to remain on land, and he labored successfully on the farm, teaching music in the evening schools, which were of such great benefit to his neighborhood. He was beloved and respected by all who knew him as a kind and obliging neighbor and helper. He became a Christian in 1840 in a time of deep religious interest, under the leadership of Rev. O. W. Smith, and joined the East Harpswell (Me.) Freewill Baptist Church, of which he was a very faithful member until his death. His home was one mile south of the Free Baptist Church, and it is still kept in good repair by the heirs. A picture of this home, so dear to scores of people, is here given. Capt. John Kemp was the son of Timothy Kemp and Hannah Snow, and thus descended from two strong old Maine families.

"At the age of twenty-one years he went to Orr's Island, Me., and engaged in the grocery business, to which, later on, he added the buying of fish. In this way he became interested in fishing vessel property and built large wharves and houses for the curing and drying of fish. He very successfully continued in this business for forty-eight years, and after his retirement from this great life-work, he interested himself in real estate, a branch of business which he had followed for some years. He was largely instrumental in founding and building the Methodist Church on Orr's Island, of which he was a member for forty-nine years, and superintendent of its Sabbath School for over fifteen years; he was also steward and class leader, and one of the largest contributors to the Master's cause. He gave largely to charity, although in such a quiet way that none but the recipients of his bounty knew of his generous gifts. One of the old citizens of the Island met the pastor after Mr. Prince had been laid to rest and said, as the tears ran down his cheeks: 'We have lost our best friend. Who is there now to take us over the hard places during these long winter months and show us such brotherly love as he did?' - (3) Mary Folsom, b. Harpswell, Me., June 27, 1808 (Folsom Genealogy, 1804); d. at Lubec, Me., May 8, 1871; m. in Eastport, Me., July 1, 1827, Luke Morang of Eastport, Me., b. Lubec, Me.; d. in Eastport, Me., Dec. 1, 1846 (40y.); a mill man; he and his wife were faithful members of the Baptist Church; he was the son of Joseph Morang, b. Quebec, Canada, and of Sally Fountain, who was born at Lubec, Me.; these parents resided on the Lubec (Me.) farm, and there were born their children: Moses, Luke, William, Edward, John, Stephen, Elizabeth and Rebecca Morang.
- (4) George Nathaniel Morang, b. April 5, 1829 (Folsom Genealogy, 1828); d. Sept. 12, 1892 (63y.); always lived in Eastport, Me., studied in schools of that town; a farmer; a very industrious, kind-hearted man; he rendered very efficient service in the United States Navy during the Civil War; member of G. A. R.; he and his wife were very faithful members of the Baptist Church; m. Oct. 23, 1849, Adeline Emery, b. Eastport, Me., Feb. 19, 1829; has been an invalid for several years, but is a woman who all her life has been of a truly hopeful, Christian spirit, ever sending out many words and letters of cheer and comfort; she was a very bright and faithful student in the Eastport (Me.) schools; the daughter of Henry T. Emery, who was born at Kittery, Me., and moved from Portsmouth, N. H., to Eastport, Me., about 1820; his wife was Mary Elizabeth Stover, b. Deer Island, N. B.; she gave fine help with this Sinnett History.

(5) William Emery Morang, b. July 21, 1850; d. at Nashville, Tenn., June 30, 1897.

“He served an apprenticeship in the office of the Sentinel, Eastport, Me., and was a very efficient foreman in that office for many years. He resigned this work in order to prepare himself for a collegiate course, and graduated from Colby College, Waterville, Me., 1879. While preparing for college, and after his graduation, he taught school, and advanced in positions of importance in instruction until he was president of Roger Williams University, Nashville, Tenn., having been in that institution not much over a year before his election to that high office. In his character was combined in an eminent degree a laudable ambition to make his mark in the world, great persistence in accomplishing whatever he set out to do, and a conscientious discharge of every duty which devolved upon him in whatever work he had to do. His death is a severe blow to his family, and the sympathy of the citizens of Eastport goes out to them in their great affliction. The funeral was from the Washington Street Baptist Church, Eastport, Me., and at the service Rev. Mr. Catlin read the following letter to Mr. Morang’s parents:

“NASHVILLE, TENN., July 1, 1897.

“Mr. George Morang, Eastport, Me.;

“My Dear Sir and Brother: Though a stranger to you, I feel that I must write a line or two expressive of my profound sympathy in the sad loss you have sustained and the deep grief you must feel in the loss of a son necessarily dear to you. I have known Professor William E. Morang for three or four years past during the time of his connection with the Roger Williams University, and, I need scarcely add, have learned to esteem him very highly. He was faithful as a teacher, indeed he was zealous and devoted in an unusual degree, meriting and enjoying the esteem and confidence of faculty and students, second to none. He was a pure, upright Christian. He is mourned by all. Where to find his equal we know not. He passed away quietly and peacefully, assuring me, and those near him, of his unfaltering trust in the God of his fathers. His last words to me were: “All is well." "None knew him but to love him, none knew him but to praise."

"At the head of the Collegiate and Normal Department in Roger Williams University he arranged classes, and instituted the best of order. He was a natural disciplinarian, as well as teacher. Called to his post amidst the greatest embarrassments, upon the removal of Doctor Stoffler, he carried the school successfully to the close of the year. Although in feeble health, his prospects for several years of educational work seemed fair until the duties of the presidency were more than doubled upon him by the commands of the board in New York. All this, added to his heavy work, brought his life to an untimely end."—Quoted from a journal in Nashville, Tenn.

- (6) Mae Augusta Davenport, b. Oct. 26, 1879; d. Nov. 7, 1907. "Her mother dying when she was but six weeks old, she went to board with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Sargent of Phillips, Me. When she was eleven years old her father died, and she was accepted by Mr. and Mrs. Sargent as their daughter, and in their hospitable home she spent the years of her girlhood, as a daughter, and as a sister to their children. As a child she was unusually bright and active, much enjoying the open air. She attended the district school, then the grammar and high schools of Phillips, Me., and afterwards the Farmington (Me.) Normal School. She taught twenty terms of school in Franklin and Washington Counties, Me., and in the town of Danforth, where she last taught, she made many devoted friends in the three years she was there. At last, in the month of March, she was obliged to give up her school on account of disease which terminated in pneumonia, and then in consumption. She was very tenderly cared for by her friends and relatives. The funeral services were in the Union Church, and they were attended by the grieving family, the Lodge of Rebekahs of which she was an earnest member, and by a large body of friends who had loved her well. The floral tributes were beautiful and profuse."

APPENDIX TO SINNETT GENEALOGY.

BY REV. CHARLES N. SINNETT.

[From the Journal of the Kilkenny Archæological Society for 1862.
Quoted in Chronicles of County Wexford by George Griffiths, pages 210–216.]

Some Account of the Sinnott Family.

“There are many distinct families of the Sinnotts in the said county (Wexford), in number exceeding any other ancient name within the limits; whose estates were valuable before the late tyrannical usurpation; amongst which the house of Ballybrennan, in Forte, was esteemed the most eminent; whose possessors frequently were entrusted with greatest authority in affairs of public concern in that county, from whose progeny descended several men remarkable for school learning and persons endowed with heroic spirits and martially disposed minds, vigorously active in their constant loyal affection to the crown of England, during all combustion and rebellious insurrections in Ireland, wherein they resolutely demeaned themselves, exposing what was most dear unto them and their lives in opposing, repelling and suppressing common enemies, invading said country, as also elsewhere, especially during the fifteen years’ war in Queen Elizabeth’s reign, when Richard Sinnott of Ballybrennan, aforesaid, commanding and having the conduct of forces raised in said county (attended by his sons and many other Sinnotts, his relations and dependants), afforded signal testimony of their valor and loyalty to their prince and country in several violent and fierce conflicts, returning with their party victorious; wherein Walter Sinnott, eldest son of said Richard, was slaine (then sheriff of said county) near Iniscorthy.”

There is an enrollment of a deed of John, son of Richard Sinnott of Ballybrennan, temp. Edward II, in the Close Rolls. Walter Sinnott of Ballybrennan, d. May 20, 1530, leaving issue, Richard, Walter (of Farrelston or Ballytramont, sheriff in 1591), and other children.

Richard Sinnott, of Ballybrennan, Esq., the eldest son, performed eminent services to the crown during Elizabeth’s reign; he was a Knight of the Shire in 1579; purchased the Grant of Enniscorthy Abbey and lands from Spenser, the poet, and sold it to Sir Henry Wallop: is frequently mentioned with eulogy in the state papers; the viceroy, in a letter dated Aug. 19, 1582, greatly praises: "Richard Synot, a man of good birth, living and credit." Was granted the Manor of Rosegarland: Died Sept. 9, 1591. His eldest son having been slain in battle, his grandson, Martin, succeeded to Ballybrennan, who married Anistace, daughter of Robert Esmond, Esq., of Jonstown, and left his heir Richard, born in 1621, who, dying Aug. 7, 1640, was succeeded by his uncle, Col. David Sinnott. He was military governor of Wexford, and during the massacre in that town by the Cromwellian soldiers, was on the 11th of Oct., 1649, shot whilst endeavoring to swim on horseback across the river to Ferrybank. Col. David Sinnott is mentioned in Carte's life of Ormonde (vol. 1, page 367) as being brought to Wexford in September, 1642, by Colonel Preston, and in another place he is called lieutenant-colonel of Preston's regiment. Preston and Sinnott had commanded the famous Anglo-Irish regiment in the Austrian service, first known as Butler's, and then as Devereaux's (Cave's Itinerary). He was son of Michael Sinnott, of Raheen, by Harpstown. His son, Timothy, was brought up a Protestant in Londonderry, but by whom we are unable to find.

Col. Oliver Sinnott was in the service of the Duke of Loraine, and was sent to the Marquis of Clauricoarde in 1651, on the king's service. (Clauricard's Memoirs.)

It is observed in a state paper of 1614, printed in the Desiderata Curiosa Hibernæ, that many of the Irish Gauls had, as officers in the continental service, and as Ecclesiastics educated abroad, acquired extraordinary endowments rendering them formidable. The old manuscript thus proceeds:

"For which their numerous demonstrations of fidelity and noble service, the said Richard Sinnott became Her Majesty's favorite, on whom as a royal gratuity, her Majesty vouchsafed graciouslie to confer a considerable estate of forfeited lands (which after the death of the eldest son, aforesaid) he distributed and settled on the younger."

"To James Sinnott, the Manor, or Barony of Rosegarland. (By an inquisition held at Enescorthy, on the 12th of Dec., 1626, it was found that Queen Elizabeth was seized in her domain, as of fee in right of her crown, of the castle, town, hamlets and lands of Losganlane, Ballilannan, Clougene, Loughnegir, Killmuristowne, Rosipole, Ballyclomackbege, Kilbreny, and Clonfad, with their appurtenances, in the county of Wexford; also being so seized, did by her letters patents bearing date Dec. 3, in the twenty-fifth year of her reign, make a lease and demise in the reversion of the premises, unto Richard Sinnott, by the name of the Manor of Rosegarland, in the County of Wexford, 1 hall, 1 castle, 1 orchard, and other small houses of office, within the said Manor, and seven carnes of land, mountains, furs, and pastures, unto the said Richard Sinnott, and assigns, for the term of forty years. The said Richard Sinnott being interested in the premises by virtue of the said lease in reversion, did, by his deed bearing the date of the first of May, in the twenty-ninth year of the said queen's reign, demise unto James Sinnott, his son, his whole estate and interest in said lands. The aforesaid lands were by the late King letters patents bearing the date the 5th of April in the second year of his reign, granted and confirmed to Sir Oliver Lambert, knight, his heirs and assigns, in fee simple forever, to hold of, our said lord the King, in free and common socadage. The interest which the aforesaid Sir Oliver Lambert had, by virtue of the aforesaid said letters patents passed unto him by King James, was (valuable consideration of 309 pounds, paid by James Synnott to the said Sir Oliver Lambert) granted by said Sir Oliver to Walter Synnott, son of said James Synnott, by deed bearing date the 25th day of April, 1604, and, by virtue of said deed of assignment, the said Walter was, and is reputed to be seized, in fee, of the premises. The said James Synnott being possessed of the lands of Loughnegis and Balleclenockbege, parcell of the premises, and the said Walter Synnott, of Ballenarnocke, and others of same to hould to them and their heirs forever, to the use of Pierce Synnott, second son to the said James and his wife Alson Cullen, for the space of four score and one years. And after the expiration of the said years to the use of said James Synnott and his heirs forever by virtue of which the said Cullen is now possessed of the said lands of Loughnegis and Balleclenockbege.)

"3. To John Synnott, Coole dyne, with 1,200 acres."

"4. To Nicholas Synnott, Parke, Lough, and other villages, with several houses in Wexford." (This Nicholas Synnott's son and heir is mentioned by Sir William Brereton, in 1634, as "Mr. William Synod of the Lough." Sc. See page 178.)

"5. To Sir William Sinnott, Knight, Balifarnocke, with 24 plowlands intire in the murrowes." (Sir William Synnott governed the country of the murroughoes (Murphys), by lease from the queen. By letter dated July 15, 1600, the privy council speak highly of his "Quality and Services" (Council office register). He was knighted on the 22d of June, 1600 (Carew Ms. 619). He was justice of the peace, and resided at Ballyfernock. His son, Walter, had his estates created into a manor, in 1617, and was Knight of the Shire in 1613. His son, William, married a daughter of Sir James Carrol, Mayor of Dublin.)

“6. To Edmund Sinot, Livingstown, with other villages.”

“Leaving only to his grandchild, Martin Sinnott, the ancient manor of Ballicaran and Ballibrennan aforesaid. The present proprietor whereof preserving in his predecession zealous loyalty to his king, was by the late Regicide Usurper expelled and exiled, his estate, anno 1653, being as a gratuity given unto General Monke, and since detained by his grace the Duke of Albemarle.

(General Monk, having been the principal power which effected the restoration, retained all that had been granted him during the interregum, as did Sir Charles Coote, Lord Broghill, Arthur Annesly, and other chief men of the restoring party. In fact, the restoration was planned in Ireland, by Coote and others, on condition that the soldiery of Cromwell’s army, and the adventurers who had been settled on Irish land, under the English act of 1642, should not be deprived of their allotments.)

“The proprietor of Ballybrennan, though distressed, preferred an existence in some foreign region before transplantation into Connaught, especially his dear and dread sovereign being exiled, he neither desiring nor accepting (when officially procured) any compensation in lieu of his ancient inheritance (as most other proprietors in Ireland) depending on divine providence and his Majesty Charles II’s unparaled clemency and bounty.

“Sinnott in Ballebrennan, bears in his escutcheon, or coat-of-arms, a swan or signet sable, the field argent (Elemdata Coloris). Besides the aforesaid houses and families of Sinnotts, the ensuing several branches and families originally descended from the house of Ballybrennan, gentlemen enjoying good estates for many descents, from whom also several persons famous for learning and chivalry, in Germany, France, Spain, Muscovre, etc., were extracted.

“In the barony of fort, Sinnott of Ballegery; Sinnott of Bath-downy; Sinot of Stonehouse of Wexford; Sinnott of Gratkesoke.”

“In Shilmaleere; Sinnott of Garrymusky; Sinnott of Owlorvicke; Sinnott of Ballinhownemore; Sinnott of Ballinvacky; Sinnott of Balleareele; Sinnott of Balliroe; Sinnott of Ballinkilly; Sinnott of Monyvilleog; Sinnott of Mogangolie.”

“These gentlemen completely armed and mounted on horseback, in Queen Elizabeth’s wars, adhering and unanimous in their resolutions, vigorously opposed such as appeared rebellious or disaffected to the crown of England; they enjoyed their freeholds and ancient inheritance until the late usurped government, being then, as proprietors transplanted. How innocent soever, loyalty to their king seemed criminal."

The Synots in Spain may have descended from John Synot, who is mentioned in the life of Peter Carew as having been employed as an "honest lawyer," but who, having lent money to Gerald, 16th Earl of Desmond, and being otherwise implicated in this nobleman's rebellion, exiled himself. Maclean's Life of Carew, pages 80, 250.

Simon Sinnott of Ballygeary, was one of the gentlemen of the Barony of Forth in 1608. (Carew Ms., 600.) As was also Jasper Sinnott of Rathdowney, one of the small ancient freeholds of the district. Henry Sinnott of Greatkyrock, is similarly recorded in the same manuscript. Synnot's "Stone House" in Wexford is of record. Of this branch was Col. David Sinnott, governor of the town. James Sinnott had a grant of the castle of Owleord, and 920 acres in socage, and died in 1618, leaving Edmund, who was expelled. Jasper Sinnott of Ballymore had a son, Arthur, who held 859 acres, and was at the battle of Ballinvegga, or Ross, 17th of March, 1643. (Printed Inquisitions.) Edmond Sinnott is mentioned as of Garrynisk, in the parish of Castle Ellis. Mathew Sinnott is mentioned as of Tinraheen, in the parish of Killisk. Richard Sinnott is mentioned as of Ballinvackey, the parish of Kilnemanagh. Besides the above there were others of the name proprietors in Ballaghkeen, as appears by the book of survey; as Piers Synnot owning 755 acres in Ardemine; Edward Synnott 421 acres in Ballyhuskart; Arthur Synnott in Garryvaden, and another Arthur in Killily. David Sinnott of Ballyroe, in Eldermine, had a grant of lands, 15, Jac. 1, by his wife Alison Roche, he had an heir Richard. Walter Sinnott, son of Richard, (son of Walter of Farrleston or Ballintroman), by "Amy, daughter of Rosse M. David, of the family of M'Davidmore," lived at Ballykayle, and by this Amy, daughter of Cahir O'Doran, had an heir, Melchoir Sinnott, who was deprived of his property by the Parliamentary Government."

From the list of confiscations and re-allotments of land in the north of the county of Wexford, during the reign of King James I: Michael Sinnott, allotted 300 acres, whereof 240 were his former possession; James Sinnott, holding 567 acres had them increased to 850; Walter Sinnott, holding 1,967 acres, had them increased to 2,120 acres; Jasper Sinnott had 975 acres assigned to him, 370 being his former quantity; John Sinnott Fitz Richard, holding 545 acres, had them increased to 605 acres; Walter Fitz-Walter Sinnott, holding 240 acres, of which he formerly had 120 acres.

The following correspondence passed between Cromwell and Col. David Sinnott, Governor of Wexford, Ireland. On the first of October, 1649, Cromwell arrives before Wexford and on the third, he thus demands the surrender of the town:

To Colonel Sinnott:

Sir:—Having brought the army belonging to the Parliament of England before this place, to reduce it to its due obedience, to the end effusion of blood may be prevented, and the town and country about it preserved from ruin, I thought fit to summon you to deliver the same to me, to the use of the state of England. By this offer, I hope it will clearly appear where the guilt lies, if the innocent persons should come to suffer with the nocent. I expect your speedy answer, and rest,

Sir, your servant,

Oct. 3, 1649.

O. CROMWELL.

Colonel Sinnott to Oliver Cromwell:

I have received your letter of summons for the delivery up of this town into your hands, which standeth not with my honor to do of myself; neither will I take it upon me, without the advice of the rest of the Officers and Mayor of this corporation (this town being of such great consequence to all Ireland), whom I will call together and confer with, and return my resolution to you tomorrow, by twelve of the clock. In the meantime, if you be so pleased, I am content to forbear all acts of hostility, so you permit no approach to be made. Expecting your answer in that particular, I remain,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's servant,

Wexford, Oct. 3, 1649.

DA. SINNOTT.

Cromwell to Colonel Sinnott:

Sir:—Having summoned you to deliver the town of Wexford into my hands, I might as well expect the delivery thereof, and not a formal treaty, which is seldom granted, but where the things stand on a more equal footing. If, therefore, the town or yourself have any desires to offer, upon which you will surrender the place to me, I shall be able to judge of the reasonableness of them when they are made known to me. To which end, if you shall think fit to send the persons named in your last, entrust by yourself and the town, by whom I may understand your desires, I shall give you a speedy and fitting answer. And I do hereby engage myself, that they shall return in safety to you. I expect an answer hereunto within an hour; and rest,

Your servant,

Oct. 4, 1649.

O. CROMWELL.

Colonel Sinnott to Oliver Cromwell:

Sir:—I have returned you a civil answer, to the best of my judgment; and thereby I find you undervalue me and the place so much, as you think to have it surrendered without capitulation or honorable terms, as appears by the hour's limitation in your last. Sir, had I never a man in this town but the townsmen and the artillery here planted, I should consider myself in a very befitting condition to make honorable conditions; and having a considerable party with them in the place, I am resolved to die honorably; or to make such conditions as may secure my honor and life in the eyes of my own party. To which reasonable terms, if you hearken not, or give me time to send my agents till eight of the clock in the fore-noon tomorrow, with my propositions, with a further safe-conduct, I leave to your better judgment, and myself to the assistance of the Almighty; and so conclude.

Your servant,

Wexford, Oct. 4, 1649.

DA. SINNOTT.

The same to the same:

Sir:—I have advised with the Mayor and Officers, as I promised, and thereupon I am content that four, whom I shall employ, may have a conference and treaty with four of yours, to see if any agreement and undertaking may be begot between us. To this purpose I desire you to send mine a safe conduct, as I do hereby promise to send unto yours when you send me the names, and I pray that the meeting may be had tomorrow at eight of the clock in the forenoon, and that they may have sufficient time to confer and debate together, and determine and compose the matter; and that the meeting and place may be agreed upon, and the safe conduct mutually sent for the same meeting this afternoon. Expecting your answer hereto, I rest, my lord,

Your servant,

Wexford, Oct. 4, 1649.

DA. SINNOTT.

Send me the names of your agents, their qualities, and degrees.

Those I fix upon are: Major Thomas Byrne, Major Theobald Dillon, Alderman Nicholas Chevers, Mr. William Stafford.

The same to the same:

Sir:—My proposition being now prepared, I am ready to send my agents with them unto you; and for their safe return, I pray you to send a safe conduct by the bearer unto me; in hope an honorable agreement may thereupon arise between your lordship and, my lord, your lordship's servant,

Wexford, Oct. 5, 1649.

DA. SINNOTT.

The same to the same:

My Lord:—Even as I was ready to send out my agents to you, the Lord General of Horse came hither with a relief, unto whom I communicated the proceedings between your Lordship and me, and delivered him the proposition I intended to despatch unto your lordship; who hath desired a small time to consider of them and to speed them unto me; which, my lord, I could not deny, he having a commanding power over me. Pray, my lord, believe that I do not this to trifle out time, but for his present consent; and if I find any long delay in his Lordship's returning them back to me, I will proceed of myself, according to my first intention; to which I beseech your lordship, give credit, at the request, my lord, of your lordship's ready servant,

Wexford, Oct. 5, 1649.

DA. SINNOTT.

Cromwell to Colonel Sinnott:

Sir:—You might have spared your trouble in the account you give me of your transaction with the Lord General of your Horse, and of your resolution in case he answer not your expectation in point of time. These are your own concernments, and it be-hooves you to improve the relief to your best advantage. All that I have to say is, to desire you to take notice, that I do hereby revoke my safe-conduct from the persons mentioned therein. When you shall see cause to treat, you may send for another. I rest, Sir,

Your servant,

Oct. 6, 1649.

O. C.

Cromwell to Colonel Sinnott:

Sir:—I have had the patience to peruse your propositions, to which I might have returned, and answered with some disdain. But, to be short, I shall give the soldiers and non-commissioned officers quarter for life, and leave to go to their several homes with their wearing clothes, they engaging themselves to live quietly there, and to take up arms no more against the Parliament of England. And the commissioned officers quarters for their lives, but to render themselves prisoners. And as for the inhabitants, I shall engage myself no violence shall be offered to their goods, and that I shall protect the town from plunder. I expect your positive answer instantly, and if you will upon these terms surrender, and in one hour send forth to me, four officers of the quality of field officers, and two aldermen, for the performance thereof, I shall thereupon forbear all acts of hostility.

Your servant,

O. CROMWELL.

Colonel Sinnott to Cromwell:

Sir:—In performance of my last, I desire your lordship to send me a safe-conduct for Major Theobald Dillon, Major James Bryne, Alderman Nicholas Chevers, and Capt. James Stafford, whom I will send to your lordship instructed with my desires: and so I rest my lord,

Your Servant,

Wexford, Oct. 11, 1649.

DA. SINNOTT.

We have already related the betrayal of the castle to the soldiers of Cromwell by the treachery of the Captain Stafford, mentioned in the foregoing letter. Boullaye Le Gouz, a Frenchman, who traveled through Ireland in the summer of 1664, published a book of his travels in 1653, in which he speaks of Wexford thus: "The town is very populous owing to its great commerce, the fortress is square, regularly enough fortified, and washed by the sea. But in a few years, this very populous town was left desolate by Cromwell."

Cromwell in Wexford, Ireland, 1649.

[From the Chronicles of County Wexford, Ireland, by George Griffiths.]

"After the sacking of Drogheda, Cromwell moved south through Wicklow to Wexford. He was compelled to adopt this movement of moving by the coast in order to have the advantage of being supported by his fleet. The citizens of Wexford appear to have been divided in opinion at this time, the interdict and excommunication of the Pope's Nuncio was always before their eyes, and they had not accepted the peace—therefore they were in opposition to Ormond as well as to Cromwell, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the garrison was persuaded, two days before the arrival of Cromwell, to admit Colonel David Sinnott as military governor. Under ordinary circumstances Sinnott should have been the most popular appointment. He was at the head of one of the Welsh families which followed Strongbow into Ireland, and, settling in the Baronies of Forth and Bargy, had ever since been one of the most peculiar elements of the Wexford population, into whose character certain traits of the strange race had gradually infiltrated, so that the Wexford peasant of the present day has a less fiery, but more condensed, character than that of the ordinary southern peasant. Sinnott was a Wexford man, a friend of Bishop French, the Bishop of Ferns, and had been lieutenant-colonel of Preston's own regiment. A day or two after the admission of Colonel Sinnott, the garrison admitted a reinforcement of 1,500 men of the Ulster regiments, commanded by Magennis, Lord of Iveragh. On the 3d of October Cromwell summoned the place to surrender. Sinnott, quietly strengthening his defences for three days, parleyed with him as to the terms of capitulation. On the 4th, Cromwell suddenly struck, under cover of his fleet, a fierce blow at the defences covering the town. A troop of dragoons succeeded in surprising the fort at the harbor's mouth, then turned its guns on a frigate of twelve guns which lay alongside, and so captured both, as well as another smaller vessel which had just run down the river. Inland, beyond the right bank of the Slaney, between Wexford and Ross, lay Ormond's camp, gradually swelling in strength. Clanricarde had sent him 1,000 foot and 300 horse out of Connaught, and Inchquin two regiments of Munster cavalry. The Ulster army was beginning to arrive in numbers.

“Ormond, always resolute and hopeful, exhibits commendable activity, and presses still more reinforcements on the town, hoping evidently that here the war would come at last to a conventional scientific state by way of a due, slow and regular siege. Lord Castlehaven also is always in the saddle to and from Duncannon to Wexford, from Wexford to Ross, great in contrivances for ferrying over troops and settling the great guns in the best possible position up to the last moment. The last moment did eventually come on the 11th of October. On the 10th Cromwell had his batteries built and mounted, and on the following morning opened fire. He lay to the southeast of the town, where there was a strong castle without walls; and he says he at first bent the whole strength of his artillery against the castle, being persuaded that, if the castle fell, the town would speedily follow.

After about a hundred shots had been fired, the Governor hung out a flag of truce and offered to treat — which, says Cromwell in his report to the Speaker, ‘I condescending to, two Field Officers, with an Alderman of the Town, and the Captain of the Castle, brought out the propositions, which for their abominableness, manifesting also the impudency of the men, I thought fit to present to your view.’ To these Cromwell at once gave a point blank negative. What part of them he considered most abominable may be inferred from his counter propositions. He would agree to allow the private soldiers and non-commissioned officers quarters for life, and leave to go to their several habitations with their wearing clothes, on engaging not to serve against the Parliament again; to the commissioned officers quarter for life, but to consider themselves prisoners of war. As for the inhabitants, ‘I shall engage myself that no violence shall be offered to their goods, and I shall protect the town from plunder.’ He demanded the absolute surrender of the town on these terms within an hour. But within an hour it had fallen into his hands by an act of the most infamous treachery recorded in the annals of war.

“The Captain of the Castle, James Stafford, was one of the Commissioners who had been send with Colonel Sinnott’s ten propositions. Cromwell drafted his reply and was about to hand it to them, when his keen eye saw that in Stafford he had to deal with a caitiff capable of a villainy which would at once relieve him from any further consideration as to terms. Cromwell thus describes what took place:

“The Captain, who was one of the Commissioners, being fairly treated, yielded up the Castle to us; upon the top of which our men no sooner appeared, but the enemy quitted the walls of the town; which, our own perceiving, ran violently up the town with their ladders and stormed it. And when they were come to the market place, the enemy making a stiff resistance, our forces brake them; and then put all to the sword that came in their way. Two boatfulls of the enemy attempting to escape, being overpressed with numbers, sank; whereby were drowned near 300 of them. I believe that there lost of the enemy not many less than 2,000, and I believe not twenty of ours from the first to the last of the siege.’

“He thus did not report to Parliament any massacre of the inhabitants. But he gives later on a significant description which tells how the town must have flowed with blood: ‘The soldiers got very good booty in this place; of the former inhabitants I believe scarce one in twenty can challenge any property in their houses. Most of them ran away, or were killed in service.'

"There must be great truth lodged in the traditions like this. A crowd of women of all ages and ranks, when the alarm spread that the soldiers were on the walls, fled in their terror and despair to the foot of the great stone cross, which since the time of St. Selskar had stood in the middle of the market place; and, kneeling there, clinging together, mother and daughter, uncertain whether it was shame or death that might befall them, but hoping at least that God would take them to Himself stainless, they saw the ring of merciless men, with presented weapons, close around them.

"Bishop French, who lay ill of fever at a neighboring town, wrote of this scene: 'There before God's altar fell many sacred victims, holy priests of the Lord; others who were seized outside the precincts of the Church were scourged with whips; others hanged; and others put to death by various most cruel tortures. The best blood of the citizens was shed; the very squares were inundated with it, and there was scarcely a house that was not defiled with carnage and full of wailing.'

"The Franciscan friars, Rev. Richard Sinnott, Francis Stafford, Paul Sinnott, John Esmonde, and others, were slain in their chapel hard by, 'some while kneeling at the altar, and others whilst hearing confessions.'"
